

ADBSS RECEIVES CONSERVATION AWARD

Your AZ Desert Bighorn Sheep Society has been selected for the Wildlife Society Conservation Award for its work and support on the US Highway 93 bighorn sheep overpass project and other projects. This award is given to a person, or persons, not employed directly as a wildlife biologist, or an organization not directly involved in wildlife management (including researchers at universities), who contribute significantly to the conservation of wildlife and/or their habitat in Arizona. Conservation can include, but is not limited to research, education, legislation, and protection or enhancement of wildlife and their habitat. Weight is given to the significance of the contribution to conservation.

Congratulations to everyone involved in this project!
